"Converting" to Buddhism. Over the last 2,500 years, many Buddhist traditions have had virtually the same process for converting. When a layperson wanted to join the Buddha's community of monks and nuns, they had to simply take formal refuge in the Three Jewels. They also had to undertake the training rules of monks or nuns, known as the vinaya. In modern times, conversion really depends ...

The Noble Eightfold Path. The Noble Eightfold Path is the fourth of the Four Noble Truths, and offers eight factors for us to cultivate in order to liberate ourselves from suffering, or achieve enlightenment. Although they are often listed in order, they are not to be cultivated in a linear fashion. Rather, we cultivate them together, especially as many are connected to other factors.
